

Hospital Employee Given Thirty Year Service Pin

Nursing staff of Harbor General Hospital transformed the sewing room at the hospital into a dahlia garden by arranging the colorful, late summer blooms into attractive bouquets, as a vivid background for a tea, honoring Mrs. Florence Frullani, who completed 30 years of service with the General Hospital, Aug. 1.

Mrs. Frullani received a diamond pin last Tuesday in the conference room of the Los Angeles Hall of Records, from Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, along with several other employees of the county who were awarded pins for lengthy service.

In looking back over her years of service, she recalls when she first started work in 1925 at General Hospital in Los Angeles, the large building now housing the hospital was not even thought of, let alone built.

The biggest change through the years has been in salaries, Mrs. Frullani recalled.

She came to the Harbor Hospital in 1946 and lived within walking distance of the hospital until two years ago when her property was needed by the county to build a school. Since then, she and her mother have resided in Long Beach. Mrs. Frullani came to California from Texas in 1922.

Representatives from all divisions of the hospital honored her at the Thursday tea, held in her working quarters, at the Harbor hospital. Among the many guests was the honoree's 81 year old mother, Mrs. J. B. Richardson. Coffee and cake were served by a committee composed of staff nurses.

Of the many congratulations which she received, she will remember for a long time what Supervisor Hahn said to her when he presented the service pin to her: "You don't look old enough to have worked 30 years."
